Before the inspired nonsense of Monty Python, David Letterman and the Far Side, there were Doodles. With a few squiggles in a simple square, these clever drawings created absurd scenes like "Ship arriving too late to save a drowning witch" (used by Frank Zappa as an album cover), "Octopus signaling for a left turn" and "Clam with buck teeth." And they were all the creation of one brilliant and unpredictable man: Roger Price. At the height of their popularity in the mid-1950s, fans enjoyed the Doodles TV show, a Doodles daily newspaper column, Doodles magazine features, Doodles cocktail napkins, even Doodles in ads for Lucky Strike cigarettes. Like hula hoops, drive-in movies and UFOs, Doodles were one of the biggest fads of the 1950s. Now Doodles make their triumphant return to delight a new generation that can use some

LEARN TO MEET THE NEEDS OF YOUR GIFTED CHILD

Though academic abilities have always been important in determining whether your child is gifted, talent in the visual or performing arts, leadership qualities, and intellectual curiosity are just as vital. But unless we as parents help nurture those talents, our gifted children can become bored, socially aggressive, or, ironically, underachievers in the classroom. Here is a practical, informative, and authoritative primer for raising and educating our gifted children from pre-school to adolescence. Beginning with sensible strategies to determine whether--and in which areas--your child is gifted, this book takes parents through selecting an appropriate day-care center, a school, and a home reference library. It helps us figure out where our role stops and the school's role begins, as well as detailing ways to keep our children's creativity alive and how to cope with sibling rivalry and our own doubts and fears. Also included are a recommended reading list, a special section on the roles of the computer and television in your gifted child's life, and much more.
